Miss Mary A. Sackow, is a candidate for superintendent of schools for the Second district, and her friends claim that she has excellent prospects of success.

A year ago a man named Huntsen left package with the proprietor of the North American hotel in Philadelphia, as security for a board bill of $25. Since then Huntsen has been convicted of stealing and is now in the Maryland penitentiary, and last week the package was called for by a police officer, and when opened was found to contain $10,000 in government bonds and a diamond cross worth $400.

The twenty-mile race at Minneapolis between Miss Cook, of California, and Miss Jewett, or rather Mrs. Robinson, of England, was a sort of a failure. After four miles had been run, Mrs. Robinson tumbled, and was unable to continue the race. Miss Cook ran ten miles after Mrs. Robinson took sick, and was awarded the purse of $3,000. It is said it was a cruelty to allow Mrs. Robinson to start in the race considering her condition.

The Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph has a communication from Madison, in regard to the blunders made by the last Legislature on the biennial sessions amendment. It has been discovered that the amendments are a confused mass of nonsense, that there is no time fixed by law, or in the amendments for them to go into effect, that it is uncertain whether the first biennial election is to be held in 1882 or 1883; and that there is no provision for any future session of the Legislature at all. The article covering the whole ground of blunders will be found in another column. Several prominent members of the Legislature have been interviewed, and also ex-Chief Justice Dixon, and they say the blunders are plain enough, and the only way to get out of the difficulty will be to vote the amendments down. It would appear to a man up a tree that the blunders were purposely made that the scheme of biennial sessions might be defeated.

THE STATE FAIR.

The annual exhibition of the Wisconsin State agricultural society will begin at Fond du Lac on Monday, September 26, and close on the Friday following. Very extensive preparations have been made for the forthcoming fair, and if energy, industry, painstaking labor, and enthusiasm in the business have their just reward, the twenty-eighth annual exhibition of the society will be the most successful, financially and otherwise, ever held in the State. The people of Fond du Lac are taking commendable pride in the fair. They are performing an immense amount of labor that the fair may a good one, and that visitors may be properly entertained during the fair week. The grounds have been put in excellent condition, and the buildings are commodious and exceedingly convenient in their general arrangement. The exposition building contains 30,000 superficial feet, and is made up of two-halves, one 132 by 30 feet, and the other 170 by 30 feet, with a court between in which artisan well and fountains are in constant operation. The stall capacity is probably the largest ever provided for stock exhibitors at our State fair.

The people of Fond du Lac deeply appreciate the importance of the State fair being held in that city, and they are determined, so far as lies in their power, to make the exhibition a credit to their enterprise and an honor to the State. The people in the city are not only enthusiastic in this matter, but the farmers for many miles around are taking an unusually deep interest in the fair and they will contribute much toward making the coming exhibition worthy the name by which it is called.

The officers of the Society have not been wanting in attention to their duties. Mr. Pratt, the president, is a practical man, thoroughly in earnest about the business of his office, and never fails to dignify his position. The principal labor in preparing for the annual exhibitions falls upon the secretary, and General George E. Bryant, who has filled that important office for the past four years, has never lacked industry and good judgment in arranging for the annual exhibition. He is an earnest worker, very popular with exhibitors, and is in all things connected with the business of his office, one of the ablest and most practical men that ever held that position. The treasurer of the society, Mr. Cyrus Miner, who lives among us and is thoroughly known to all the farmers in Rock county, and to many throughout the State, is another officer who takes a pardonable pride in making the State fair a success. These gentlemen are carrying very much responsibility for the special benefit of the agricultural and mechanical interests of the State, and it is hoped that Rock county, which can do very much because it is abundantly able, will do its share toward making the exhibition of the State agricultural society of 1881, one of the most successful ever held in the State.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

BARABOO, Wis. Sept. 13.—In a row at Humphrey's saloon, Ironton, this county last evening, W. Clossey shot a young man, the ball striking him in the forehead, which escaped proving fatal by his throwing his head back at the instant, causing only a severe scalp wound. Clossey, believing he had killed him, ran out of the saloon and into a neighbor's where he shot himself through the head, from the effects of which he died this morning.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Special to the Gazette.

ELBERTON, Sept. 14, 9 A. M.—At the examination of the President at 8 a. m., his temperature was 98.4; pulse, 100; respiration, 19. The President passed a comfortable night, sleeping most of the time. He is bright and cheerful this morning and has taken fruits and his first meal for the day with relish.

STAR-ROUTE CASES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—There is a very evident revival of interest here in the proposed prosecution of the star-route plunderers. It is impossible to ascertain even the approximate date of the presentation of the prepared cases before the grand jury now in session. It is doubtful whether even the government officers in charge of the cases can yet know the precise time when this can be done. Owing to the numerous matters the jury will have to deal with as promptly as possible, it is understood to be the desire of the prosecuting officers to have the jury relieved of much of the other business to be laid before it, in order that the star-route cases may occupy the uninterrupted attention of the jury after they are taken up.

SHOT HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 13.—A special to the Pioneer Press says William King shot and killed his brother-in-law, Charles Wilkins (both Germans) at Shelly River, Cass county. Wilkins had threatened to kill his wife because she refused to give him money received from the old country. Mrs. Wilkins fled to her brother (King) for protection. Wilkins went to King's house and told him, "One of us must die to-night." King told him he would shoot him if he entered the house. Wilkins crossed the threshold and attempted to strike King, when King fired five shots from a revolver, one taking effect in the heart and killing Wilkins. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide. King, however, was arrested and brought to Brainerd, and the grand jury is investigating. Wilkins leaves two children.

A NOTORIOUS CRIMINAL.

OSHKOSH, Sept. 13.—J. H. Smith, who registered as from St. Louis at the Tremont house a week ago, and who was caught in the act of burglarizing the rooms of several guests, pleaded guilty before Judge Fulling in the circuit court, and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the State prison at Waupun. This afternoon Arthur Wood of Pinkerton's detective force, arrived in the city with a search warrant for the prisoner, whom Wood represents to be a notorious crook, and for whom active search has been made for a long time. He is known to detectives as Dave Cronen, alias Cummings, alias Little Dave, alias Hogan. He is wanted for a jewelry robbery at Baltimore last May, a large diamond robbery in Philadelphia, for complicity in the robbery of the First National bank of Quincy, Ill., where a loss of $40,000 in money and securities was sustained, for a jewelry robbery at New York, and a robbery of the Fall City tobacco bank of Louisville. He was indicted for the New York robbery, but jumped bail. He was identified by Detective Wood, and the two engaged in friendly conversation.

GENERAL BURNSIDE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 13.—General Burnside died suddenly at 11 o'clock this morning at his residence in Bristol, aged 57 years. He had been slightly ill for two or three days, but was in this city last evening. The immediate cause of his death was spasms of the heart. A telephone message from the General's house summoned Senator Anthony and Dr. Miller, but before the telephone connection was broken a message came that the General was dead. Governor Littlefield, Senator Anthony, Representatives Chase and Aldrich, and other personal friends immediately started for Bristol.

General Burnside was taken ill on Tuesday last but neglected to call a physician until Saturday. Dr. Barnes, his family physician, was with him Saturday night, and visited him several times Sunday night. Monday morning he was more improved, and, contrary to the advice of his physicians, went to Providence Monday afternoon, returning by the 7 p. m. train. On his return he complained of severe pains in the region of the heart. Dr. Barnes was not called until about 10 o'clock this morning, when he found him suffering severe pains similar to neuralgia of the heart, and he expired in a few moments. When the doctor entered his room he remarked something must be done at once, which was the only audible words he uttered, but was unconscious until a few moments before he expired. No one was present when he died except Dr. Barnes and his family servants.

TERRITORIAL GOVERNORS.

WASHINGTON, September 13.—Secretary Kirkwood is minded to break up the system of absenteeism inaugurated by ornate governors of western Territories. Two flagrant cases have forced themselves upon his attention. Fremont, of Arizona, and Ordway, of Dakota, have been absent from their respective capitals, furthering their interests at the east, for many weeks. Fremont has just returned to Arizona, in obedience to sharply imperative orders. Like orders will be issued in like cases in the future, and something will probably be done to prevent the appointment of eastern politicians to Territorial positions, which they unlawfully convert into sinecures.

NEW ORLEANS RIOTS.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—Rioting was kept up all day, and but little intermission was had from the police, and none from the militia. Efforts at an adjustment have been working all day, with promise of success, but, at midnight, the laborers' meeting adjourned without action till 10 to-morrow. Only one man was shot to-day. McElroy, acting governor, says that if there are further disturbances to-morrow he will use the troops freely.

THE PRAIRIE WAIF.

The above entitled play is to be given at the Opera house next Friday evening by "Buffalo Bill," and promises to be highly sensational and entertaining. The Cleveland Leader says:

One of the most blustering and disagreeable storms of the winter prevailed last evening and people arrived at the Academy covered with clinging snow, but despite this fact the house was crowded. The audience was immensely pleased with the play and forgot all its troubles in the enjoyment of the "wild romance of the far West." Hon. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), appears this time in a new drama, "Prairie Waif," which permits of his impersonating three distinct Western characters. The piece has all the charm of the dime novel, embodied in living forms of stout, Indians, Mormon Danites and wild animals, and represented in absorbing reality. Buffalo Bill acts with the same assumption of indifferent bravery which characterizes all his stage work. His exhibition of fancy rifle-shooting is very attractive. The company supporting is adequate to the play, and it is given with the requisite effect. The show will remain the balance of the week.

AN ABSURD MUDDLE.

The Biennial Sessions Amendment a Confused Mass of Nonsense.

No Time Fixed by Law or in the Amendments for Them to Go Into Effect.

Uncertain Whether the First Biennial Election is to be Held in 1882 or 1883.

No Provision for any Future Session of the Legislature at All.

Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph.

MADISON, Sept. 10.—As the advertised notices of the Secretary of State to call for a vote of the people on the question of biennial sessions, at the November election, the Sunday Telegraph correspondent was commissioned to hunt up the legislation on the subject, and a pretty muddle it appears to be. In fact the proposition submitted to the people is such an abortive boche, and so unintelligible in its vital provisions, that the only safe way to vote the whole thing down, and, if the people insist on biennial sessions, to begin the whole matter anew, and provide for the submission of a practicable amendment to the constitution having that object in view, and providing for all the contingencies included.

IN SUCH A CHANGE.
A copy of the main portions of the proposed amendment will be found below, and it will be seen, that there is no provision for the first session under the biennial system, consequently not for any subsequent session, and the provision for the election of members of the Assembly is so faulty that no one body can be chosen under it. The provision for the election of State Senators is also so defective as to be ineptive. The entire proposed amendment is faulty in not providing for the commencement of the biennial system. The probabilities are, that it abolishes the next session by closing the annual system with its adoption in November, and no provision can then be made for any future session of

THE LEGISLATURE FOR ANY PURPOSE.

The first proposed amendment is as follows:

"The members of the assembly shall be chosen biennially by single districts on the Tuesday succeeding the 1st Monday in November after the election of members of the assembly, to be held on the Tuesday succeeding the election of members of the assembly."

The members of the assembly shall be chosen biennially by single districts on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday of November.

This is plain enough. If the amendment had said that the first election should occur on the Tuesday succeeding the first Monday of November next after the adoption of the amendment, it would have been plain. But as it is, there is no language to indicate whether the first election under the biennial system is to occur one year or two years from next November. As a consequence, no provision at all is made for the election of an assembly under the biennial system, as the uncertainty of the section renders it absolutely void, for any lawyer will say that a law providing for any election which leaves it uncertain whether it is to be held next year or this year after fails from obscurity to provide for any election at all.

The provision in regard to the election of Senators is equally obscure, for it provides that they shall be elected when the Assembly are, and it is shown to be extremely doubtful if Assemblymen are to be elected at all. To this is added OTHER UNINTELLIGIBLE COMPLICATIONS.

The section is as follows:

"The Senators shall be elected by single districts of convenient contiguous territory at the same time and in the same manner as members of the Assembly are required to be chosen, and no provision is made for the election of a Senate district. The Senate district shall be numbered in the regular series.

The Senators shall be chosen alternately from the odd-numbered districts, or holding over at the time of the adoption of the amendment shall continue in office until the next election is held and qualified.

And after the adoption of the amendment, all Senators shall be chosen for the term of four years.

The inextricable confusion of this language is such that it conveys

NO IDEA TO THE MIND.

It is left in doubt by the preceding section whether Assemblymen are to be elected in 1882 or 1883, and this section provides that Senators should be elected at the same time. A provision evidently intends to extend the forms of Senators elected this fall or holding over, but it fails for want of perspicuity. The whole section is an insoluble problem. It reads like "consequences" in the parlor play, and has the same laughable incomprehensibility.

The next section, however, is conspicuous, for it in effect abolishes legislative sessions altogether and in that perhaps the framers builded better than they knew. It is as follows:

"The Legislature shall meet at the seat of government at such time as shall be provided by law, once in two years and no oftener, unless called by the Governor in special session, and when so convened it shall not be necessary to be convened except such as shall be necessary to accomplish the special purpose for which it was convened."

THE FATAL DEFECT OF THIS SECTION

is that by making no time for the commencement of the biennial system, the implication is that it commences immediately.

The adoption of the amendment will close the annual system. No session can then be held till two years after the last session.

The next session is to be held at a time to be provided by law, but there is to be no session till then to enact a law fixing the time. No day, no month, no time of the year is fixed for the first biennial session to commence.

The annual session next winter will be dispensed with if this amendment is adopted, and the biennial system cannot begin till a time is fixed by law for the first session under it. The adoption of the amendment will be in effect to adjourn all sessions of the legislature sine die."

A REMARKABLE FEAT.

The Spot Where the Eastern States Come Together.

101 Club Hotel Telegram.

W. L. Rosekrans, of Albany, while on lamp during the past week performed the remarkable feat of being in three counties at one time. He sat on a stone in Fulton County and reached his right foot in Saratoga County and left foot in Montgomery county—70 miles.

Remarkable as the above may seem to our evening contemporaries, a feat still more remarkable can be performed by any person who will take the trouble to ascend the mountain which separates the towns of Bowdoin, Vermont, and Peterborough in this country. At the top of this mountain is a stone which marks the spot where the states of Vermont, Massachusetts and New York come together. A person can stand on the top of the stone with one foot being in New York, the other in Vermont at the same time, but in three states as well. During the time when the abolition law was not a dead letter in Vermont and Massachusetts, the people of those states who resided along the New York State line were in the habit of crossing over on this side to purchase their alcohol beverages. An interesting resident of Peterborough, to meet the wants of his neighbors across the mountains leased a small strip of ground from the owners of the land, which cornered at the stone spoke of and erected a three-cornered shanty thereon, the stone being in the center of the building. He then put up his bar in the shanty, and a triangle, one side of which was in Vermont, another in Massachusetts, and the third in New York. To save expense, he sold no medicine in this place, but stocked a good supply of liquors, which he sold by the glass, according to demand. The fact that he was violating the laws of the commonwealths of the old Bay State was reported to the authorities in due time, and a constable, armed with a warrant and a pair of handcuffs, came from Peterborough to arrest him. When the officer arrived at the shanty, a number of the residents of Massachusetts standing on the Vermont side of the line, treating each other in true Yankee style. The constable stepped up to the door, showing his legal documents, and asked the contents to the document of course, and added:

"I arrest you in the name of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, and by virtue of this warrant."

The bartender pointed to the corner stone which stood inside the counter, in the face of the New England peace preserver and replied:

"That's all very fine, you man; but it stands to you that your warrant doesn't reach me in either of Vermont and I am perfectly safe from your jurisdiction."

A few days after the bartender received an official visit from a Vermont constable armed with a warrant for his arrest for selling liquor in the state. But the same tactics were employed on the occasion of the other constable's visit. The two constables not long after the last visit happened to meet, and a plan was agreed upon for the capture of the "daredevil." The Vermont officer appeared at the bartender's in disguise, and remained about the shop during the forenoon, keeping onward then with those who came to replenish their jugs. About noon the Massachusetts constable arrived, and proceeded to again search over the bar room. The bartender slipped into the Vermont corner of the room, and just as he did so he was seized by the constable from that state, but while the latter was pulling out his warrant and handcuffs the New Yorker broke away from him and got over into the stable yard, where he was beyond the protection of both. After a time however came the full knowledge of the authorities on this side of the line that the man was selling liquor without a license and a warrant was obtained for his arrest for violating the laws of the great Empire State. When the Peterborough constable appeared upon the scene he found that the man had removed his stock to the Vermont side of his house and was retailing drinks in the State of Massachusetts. Of course the other was powerless to go across the line to arrest him, and he again escaped.

The affair was the talk of the country for miles around, finally the officers of the three states moved upon the shanty at once and the same time and the delinquent rumseller was now in hot water. He carried out the "joke" to the end, however, for, getting on top of the stone which stands partly in the three states, he shouted:

"Come on and divide me into three parts, but I'll make it hot for the one that takes two-thirds of me that don't belong to him!"

He had, however, taken too large a quantity of his own medicine to enable him to persevere his equilibrium on top of the stone, and while still delaying the constable he fell off and rolled over into the state of Massachusetts, where he was secured by the officer from that state and taken to Williamstown in triumph. The other two officers concluded that the liquor was partly in the state of Vermont and partly in the state of New York, and they made an equal division, each confiscating one-half of the stock in trade in the name of his state.

Gently Does It.

Eugene Cross, Swan Street, Buffalo, writes: "I have used Senna, Bromo, for dyspepsia and indigestion, and have found it to act admirably as a gentle aperient and blood purifier. I consider it unequalled; you are at liberty to use my name as a reference." Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

Saratoga correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch says: It takes a western belle to speak her mind without fear of consequences. One of these inevitable old bachelors of society had been visiting one of these young ladies, and when he rose to go he expressed himself as having been charmed with her society, and hoped to see her again. Oh, as to that sir," said the belle, "since you are not a marrying man, I think there is no need of your calling again!" So that settled the matter. The fact is Saratoga is a poor matrimonial market. There is little use of match-making matrons pinching themselves in purse to give their daughters a season or two at the springs with the view of securing an eligible husband. There may be eligible men in the world, but the most of them are already married.

Society is flooded with wretched old bachelors and seedy widowers, who monopolize the company of the belles to such a degree that a young man is cast comparatively in the shade. If, as one young lady declares, all widows ought to be cremated with their defunct husbands, then all old bachelors and widowers ought to drown—so as to be forever out of the way. It is true these old fellows are hand-some sometimes, for an escort just as we take pieces of cracked china from the cupboard when there is not enough better ware to go round; but, if a young lady indulges a taste for antiques, and allows herself to be escorted here and there by a train of wretched old fossils, who take up her attention, and have not the slightest idea of proposing, as the years go by she will find herself fading, passing belle, whom the younger men will neglect and the more youthful beauties will deride as an "old maid."

MILTON JUNCTION.

The Newville bridge is now fully completed and has been in use over a week. The company has charged the rates of half somethin', making the rate for a double team for single crossing 15 cents, or half way 25 cents. Certainly after the experience of the past summer no one will question the propriety of the charge.

Mr. Geo. P. Crandall returned from the west last week.

Mr. O. P. Clarke and wife left last week for Kansas, to spend a few weeks with Mrs. Clurse's parents near Fort Scott.

Mrs. Madeline Ayers of Hornellsville, N. Y., daughter of Deacon P. Allen, of this place, is visiting her father and friends here for some weeks.

The tobacco crop is now nearly harvested, the last week or two has done wonders in bringing forward the late setings, and contrary to all expectations a month ago, has made the late fully equal to the early crops.

Miss Sparks, who formerly resided here, returned to this place last week and is now the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Miller.

The Ladies Aid society held an ice-cream festival at the lecture room of the church on Tuesday evening, the proceeds to be used in cushioning the seats of the church.

Jas. O'Neil, of Milwaukee, was in town shaking hands with old friends last week.

Mr. Circle of Edgerton, bought several acres of $1 tobacco in this village last week at one shilling per pound.

Our graded school opened last week under the direction of Prof. Bartholomew, and is now in full blast.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Button left last week for their old home in East Rutland, Vermont. Very few indeed have ever left our ranks whose departure was so generally regretted and who took with them so large an amount of the best wisdom and healthy good will of the community.

Jasper Davis is putting on a new addition to his house lately purchased of George Barrett, and fixing it up generally.

Rev. A. B. Prentiss arrived here from the East on Tuesday, and will spend a few days visiting friends here before going to the general conference at Faifax, Illinois.

Mr. W. Maxon and John Almon, have rented the Auction mill property for the coming year, and expect to get it into operation by the first of next week. The mill is being put in good repair, the gentlemen named are also putting in elaborate machinery, and apparatus for manufacturing syrup from the large amount of sugar cane raised in this locality. The feed department of the mill will receive their special attention, and the wood department will be ready for business by the middle of next week.

The community may well congratulate itself on this favorable opening of so important a branch of business in our town, and we have no doubt that the community at large will show their appreciation by a liberal patronage.

In Good Spirits.

T. Walker, Cleveland, O., writes: "For the last twelve months, I have suffered with lumbago and general debility. I commenced taking Burnock Blood Bitters about six weeks ago, and now have great pleasure in stating that I have recovered my appetite, my complexion has grown ruddy, and feel better together." Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

Andrew Decker, an old man, 71 years of age, was found dead yesterday morning in an old cabin in the Wet Woods. He had been living alone, and when discovered had evidently been dead for some time. The body presented a terrible spectacle when discovered. It was lying on the floor half naked, with the face and portions of the body torn by a couple of cuts, which were found eating the body. Coroner Miller was sent for and held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict of death from heart disease. Who Decker is or where he came from no one knows, and there seems to be some mystery about his advent in the Wet Woods. The people in the neighborhood say he came there about three months ago and took up his abode in an old log cabin that had been tenanted for years. He led the life of a hermit, never going near any of the neighbors and seldom speaking to any one. What he did for a living, or how he lived, no one knew. The only things found in the cabin were some cooking utensils and a number of books.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The other two officers concluded that the liquor was partly in the state of Vermont and partly in the state of New York, and they made an equal division, each confiscating one-half of the stock in trade in the name of his state.

He had, however, taken too large a quantity of his own medicine to enable him to persevere his equilibrium on top of the stone, and while still delaying the constable he fell off and rolled over into the state of Massachusetts, where he was secured by the officer from that state and taken to Williamstown in triumph. IN MEMORIAM.

The following lines were written to commemorate the death of the late Mrs.

Mary Belle McCrea Clinchy, who died at her home in Beloit, August 20, 1881:

Mrs. Clinchy was well known here in our little village of Afton, and none knew her but to love her. Her life was unblended, and she exemplified a Christian spirit all through her long, painful illness. Mrs. McCrea has lost in the past seven years besides her companion, four children, with that fatal disease, consumption. Her eldest son, William,
and her only daughter, Carrie, Vina (Mrs.
Phibbin) and Bobbie (Mrs. Clinchy) have all fallen beneath the destroyer's blow, and left a widowed mother to mourn their loss. But she does not mourn us one who has no hope, nor did she grieve over her son, William, as she did for her husband, and now she has lost her son, too.

—Mr. Harvey Conover has left for his home in Evansville, to-day.

—Miss Helen Lovell has gone to Ripon to attend school this winter.

—Report says that Dr. Frank Highland is to move his family here for the winter.

MILTON.

—D. Williams and R. Smith each shipped a car load of live hogs from this station last Monday.

—The Vincent drove off of hogs averaged 311 pounds and put $1,000 in the pocket of their owner.

—Monday night was rather cool and tobacco growers who have not got their crop in the shed are feeling rather uneasy.

—Miss Mary Walker has returned to Sparta, where she will teach the coming year.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Dunn departed
Tuesday morning for their New Jersey home. Mr. and Mrs. Williams accompanied them as far as Chicago.

Too Fastidious.

Some would-be Byrons look on with disgust at the rhymes of Electric Oil poet;
But we have the best article known to the world, And intend that all persons shall know it.

It cures coughs, colds, asthma and en-teritis, Bronchitis and complaints of that kind;
It does not cost much, though rheumat-
ics it cures,

Tis best Oil in the world you can find.
Sold by A. J. Roberts and Sherer & Co.

Two Years had passed again

Death's messenger came once more.
My companion this time, Oh, pain!
Never had I known you before.

—If it be possible, I cried!

Let the bitter cup pass on.

But not to me it must be denied.

I drink till the drops are gone.

—I am a physician I cried!

Lord, thy will be done.

And when I looked across the tide
To where my loved one had gone.

A few short months pass by when to!

That messenger comes and finds me.

Garrie, my youngest born must go,

I must in submission bow.

I wept for my fair young flower,

Blue so very young to die;

Again I felt the healing power of

Garrie who rules on high.

A twelvemonth has not passed away

Since back the messenger flies.

This time he calls and they call,

They bring me back again.

—Another loved one must go,

Belle must to the destroy'd bond,

And pass through the dark water's flow.

Thus have they failed one by one,

From this earth away.

—To whom the love all have gone.

—I wept for my fair young flower,

Blue so very young to die;

Again I felt the healing power of

Garrie who rules on high.

I cherish the jewel she left;

She still holds it in her care;

Vina's child will ne'er be bereft

If God my life will spare.

One more brief year has come to end,

Another loved one must go,

Belle must to the destroy'd bond,

And pass through the dark water's flow.

Thus have they failed one by one,

From this earth away.

—To whom the love all have gone.

—I wept for my fair young flower,

Blue so very young to die;

BRIEFLETS.

Firemen's dance this evening. Everybody should turn out and turn in to the Fair.

Hon. I. C. Sloan, of Madison, was in the city to day.

A gentleman who has lived in this city for the last thirty years, attended the county fair-to-day for the first time.

The funeral services of the late Noble D. Stevens, were held this afternoon at the family's residence, Rev. T. P. Sawin officiating.

Mr. E. Calt has erected a wooden building on Franklin street near his other property. It is to be occupied by a shaving machine agency.

Henry Jones lost his little finger this morning. A shaving machine in Shopbell & Norris' factory clipped off. Dr. Sanborn dressed the wound.

James S. Clark, the well known cigar and tobacco dealer, is soon to move his stock two doors further east, and the store now occupied by him, together with the adjacent one, are to be thrown into one.

Oscar Nowlan, who has the contract for building the county insane asylum at the poor farm, is getting ready to rush things. The number, 100,000 feet, will be here in a day or two, and part of the brick are already on the ground.

Those who wish to have a really enjoyable time, this evening, should attend the party to be given by the St. Patrick's T. A. & B. Society, in Apollo Hall, and dance to the music of Anderson's band. Admission 50 cents. A cordial invitation is extended to all, and a good time will be guaranteed.
